Application of Religion and Science to Ecology and Sustainability:
Perspectives From Islam and Buddhism

IBED 2022 Collective Resolutions

Being a collective of religious and educational organizations concerned about climate change and the environment, we the undersigned are organising The Islam & Buddhism Eco Dialogue (IBED 2022) on 15 & 16 January 2022.

This program is a manifestation of the commitment of the world community, especially Muslims and Buddhists, to protecting the environment and advocating climate justice for the sustainability of future generations.

THEREFORE, WE RESOLVE TO:

01

---

Continue to strengthen inter-religious dialogue efforts at the local, national, and international levels to improve understanding between the world's multi-religious and multi-ethnic world communities;

Foster efforts to protect the environment together through dialogue and cooperation between religions to ensure that the world is educated on the importance of protecting the environment based on their religious education;

02

03

---

Spread awareness of protecting the environment and addressing climate change to all world leaders to ensure government policies in the world are sustainable;

Defend the right to quality of life for today's generation and continuously commit to bringing an agenda of sustainable living;

04

05

---

Foster the understanding that the responsibility of defending this earth is a shared one, and that all parties should cooperate to find a joint solution.
